

TITLE IX STATEMENT OF NON-DISCRIMINATION AND UNIVERSITY POLICIES REGARDING SEX DISCRIMINATION AND SEXUAL HARASSMENT

La Salle University does not discriminate on the basis of sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy status, marital status, parental status, familial status or otherwise tolerate such discrimination. Additionally, as a recipient of federal funds, the University complies with Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 ("Title IX") which prohibits discrimination in education programs and activities on the basis of sex, including with respect to employment and admission. Prohibited sex discrimination under Title IX and other federal, state, and local laws includes sexual harassment, sexual misconduct, sexual assault, sexual violence, domestic violence, and stalking as defined by and further explained in La Salle University's harassment and discrimination policies referenced below.

The following are La Salle University's policies regarding sex discrimination and sexual harassment:

Employees & Visitors: La Salle University Anti-Harassment and Non-Discrimination Policy, located in the University Policy Register at: Anti-Harassment and Non-Discrimination Policy

Students (including prospective students): The Student Sexual Misconduct and Interpersonal Violence Policy, located in the University Policy Register at: Student Sexual Misconduct and Interpersonal Violence Policy and a separate policy for handling Title IX Complaints, located in the University Policy Register at: Policy for Handling Title IX Complaints Against Students). Both policies can be found in the Student Guide to Rights, Resources, and Responsibilities.

Individuals who report allegations that could constitute covered sexual harassment under these policies, including allegations of dating violence, domestic violence, sexual violence, and stalking, have the right to receive supportive and protective measures and accommodations from the University. As appropriate, supportive and protective measures and accommodations may include, but not be limited to:

- Counseling
- extensions of deadlines or other course-related adjustments
- modifications of work arrangements or class schedules
- campus escort services
- restrictions on contact between the parties (No Contact Orders)
- changes in work or housing locations
- Leave of Absence
- increased security and monitoring of certain areas of the campus
- individualized safety planning with Public Safety
